Greensboro History Museum

What does 100 years of collecting Greensboro history look like?

Maybe it looks like Greensboro's first fire engine, the 1886 General Greene. Or a cap a wounded patriot wore at the Battle of Guilford Courthouse during the American Revolution. Or a section of the F.W. Woolworth's lunch counter where students demanded an end to segregation in 1960. A massive loom from the city's White Oak Mill, the world's largest denim manufacturer. A covered wagon that brought colonists down the Great Wagon Road. Street murals from 2020's racial justice protests.

For a century, we've been taking care of treasures like these to connect the next generation to our city's diverse stories. Today, the Greensboro History Museum is an award-winning Smithsonian Affiliate with more than 17,000 square feet of exhibits.

In 2024-25 the Greensboro History Museum is commemorating 100 years of sharing Greensboro history with Gate City residents and visitors from all over the world. You're invited to join us for special programs, community activities, new exhibitions, and more as we look forward to our next century.

Be part of the celebration. Be part of our history. Learn more at greensborohistory.org/ghm100

Denim Dynasties

GREENSBORO'S GARMENT LEGACY

Greensboro, sometimes referred to as Jeansboro, is the world capital of denim, celebrating this legacy for its third consecutive century. For more than 127 years, Greensboro has been home to textile mills and apparel factories, which were the largest of their kind for the majority of the 20th Century. The first yard of denim cloth was woven in 1896, and the first overalls were produced here the following year. Today, Greensboro is still called home by two of the largest denim brands, Lee and Wrangler, and their parent business, Kontoor Brands. Greensboro also remains the home of Cone Denim and Burlington, two of the largest manufacturers of denim cloth in the world. During World War II, Cone Export & Commission Company leased a large tract of land to the U.S. Army for $1 per year. It would host the Overseas Replacement Depot and Basic Training Camp No. 10, housing an average of 35,000 troops in our city daily throughout the war and facilitated by our train station downtown. While the factories in downtown made uniforms for GIs and the mills churned out cloth destined for overseas, Greensboro was the only city with a basic training camp located within its city limits.

Greensboro's economic prosperity and rich history is intrinsically tied to jeans, and three centuries later, it's still in our genes. Today, the revitalization effort at the three remaining mills in the newly named Mill District, located in NE Greensboro, is breathing new life into these gigantic structures, creating hundreds, if not thousands of homes for residents and businesses. The community made prowess of industry possible. Philanthropic efforts from the families that led these great businesses are visible throughout the city today, from parks to theaters and countless grants awarded to worthy organizations. Greensboro is the city that made Levi Strauss famous for its sturdy cloth, the city that won the hearts of cowboys everywhere with Blue Bell's Wrangler, and the city where we all remain cut from the same cloth today!

MILITARY HISTORY

Militia from across North Carolina and Virginia joined the Continental army at Guilford Courthouse to battle the British Army. Successful collaboration between the army and citizen soldiers resulted in victory in the Southern Campaign and helped secure American independence.

Unfortunately, the war did not guarantee the freedoms and liberties captured in the Declaration for all. Black Patriots knew this cruel reality especially well. At least 45 African American Patriots served in the Battle of Guilford Courthouse. In Greensboro, about 180 years later, African American students launched the sit-in movement, a critical phase of the Civil Rights Movement. They continued the fight for those very same freedoms and liberties for which earlier generations of African Americans fought.

AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY

From the beginning of our nation's history to today, African Americans have been instrumental in creating the world around us. There is no denying Greensboro's roots in African American history run deep, and one institution, the Charlotte Hawkins Brown Museum at Historic Palmer Memorial Institute, discusses just that.

The museum interprets the life and work of Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown - a prominent NC-born educator and advocate for social justice - and her school, Palmer Memorial Institute. From 1902 to 1971, Palmer served as the premiere college preparatory and social finishing school for the black middle class and graduated several significant figures in our state's history. Visitors can explore the school's campus, uncover connections between Dr. Brown and the Civil Rights Movement, and discover how African Americans lived in the south during the Jim Crow Era. The Museum is located at 6136 Burlington Rd, Gibsonville, 336-449-3310, nchistoricsites.org/chb.

ENTREPRENEURIAL SPIRIT in Greensboro

Evan Morrison, Tinker Clayton, William Clayton: HUDSON'S HILL

Since we collaborated in late 2013, Hudson's Hill has exceeded our initial expectations. Evan, Tinker, and William, who originally operated individual spaces, consolidated into a single location in early 2014. The debut of Hudson's Hill that summer marked a significant milestone, drawing inspiration from the history of the 500 block of South Elm Street.

The roots of Hudson's Hill trace back to Hudson Grocery, a late 1800s train passenger hub that earned its nickname from its hilltop location, and connection to a downstairs dry goods store. The Hudson brothers, unrelated but influential, launched Hudson Overall Company upstairs, evolving into the iconic Wrangler brand in 1947. Today, Hudson's Hill stands as "The Last Great American-Made General Store," offering a diverse mix of American-made goods recognized among the Top 50 Retail Stores in the US. Our commitment to purposeful, high-quality production and personal relationships with every brand reflects our genuine sustainability ethos.

What sets us apart is our close-knit team of six individuals who have transformed Hudson's Hill into more than a store—it's a community hub and a haven for Goods With Purpose™. From vintage glass bottled Cheerwine to Red Wing leather boots, each item in our shop not only proudly bears the "Made in the USA" label but also carries a unique story. Visit us at 527 South Elm Street in Downtown Greensboro to experience a mindful approach to consumption and conscious living. Hudson's Hill is owned by Tinker Clayton, William Clayton, and Evan Morrison, with staff members John Hudgins, Greg Redelico, and Andrew Duke.

Paris and J'Mihyia Whitsett: MARJAE'S WINE BAR

Founded by Greensboro natives J'Mihyia and Paris Whitsett, Marjae's Wine Bar is a pioneering Black-owned establishment near downtown. Established two years ago, it provides a safe space for women while offering an impressive selection of wine, cocktails, and mocktails, complemented by carefully curated charcuterie boards.

Located at 1107 Grecade St., Marjae's is not just a wine bar, it's a community landmark. Paris and J'Mihyia actively engage with the community through events, embodying their commitment to passionately serving and enriching Greensboro. Come and experience the fusion of culture and camaraderie at Marjae's Wine Bar - a celebration of Greensboro's rich heritage.

Paris and J'Mihyia Whitsett

In addition to Marjae's Wine Bar, Paris and J'Mihyia also own The Breakfast Spot and Barber Nails.
